

Architectural Overview

Data Segregation

Each tenant application is hosted in a separate Kubernetes namespace. The application is only allowed to communicate within its own namespace, and never reachable from another namespace. This segregation is reached through security rules that limits the network within a pod.

Each tenant has its own database schema, which is only reachable from the tenant's application. A user must have authorized itself by using 2FA to get access to their own database through the application.

complylog.com

COMPLYLOG

A EURONEXT COMPANY